G.W. TO HOLD STREET FAIR SATURDAY, APRIL 23

On Saturday, April 23 from noon until 3:30 p.m., The George Washington University campus will come alive with music, dance, displays, games, food and drink as the G.W. School of Government and Business Administration celebrates "Fun Day," a community street fair with a single purpose--to let everyone enjoy an afternoon of outdoor springtime fun.

The celebration kicks off at noon at 21st and G Streets, N.W., with a procession of precision motorcycles and mini-cars, a marching bagpipe band, clowns, and a Colonial mock battle fought by appropriately costumed U.S. Army infantry troops. Next comes an aerobic dance demonstration by a university dance class, medieval knights in a mock melee, and a performance by the U.S. Marine Corps Silent Drill Team.

After these demonstrations, everyone is invited to browse and enjoy performances by the Burger Chimpanzees, hot air balloon rides, a dunk-the-professor booth, international foods from hamburgers to burritos, soft drinks, ice tea and free beer. A number of games with cash prizes are slated for pre-registered participants; among the contests are an egg toss, tug-of-war and business simulation games to test both muscular and mental prowess. Music entertainment will also be varied, with ensembles playing mariachi, Dixieland jazz, woodwind, brass, string, blues, and ragtime piano.

Door prizes and awards will be presented at 3 p.m., and will feature a robot drawing the winning raffle ticket. As cleanup commences, the entertainment continues; a country blues band will play outdoors while the award winning documentary, "The Saving of the President," will be shown in G.W.'s Hall of Government.

There is no "Fun Day" admission charge to come have a good time. There is a small registration fee for the competitive events; this registration is from noon until 6 p.m., April 18-22 in the first floor lobby of the Hall of Government, at 710 21st Street, N.W.

For more information on any "Fun Day" events, call 676-7278.

EXAM-WEEK STRESS RELIEVED AT GW VIA ART THERAPY

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- Students at The George Washington University will ease final examination stress on Wednesday, April 20--via art therapy. Large, brightly colored poster chalks, plenty of poster board and lots of sidewalk space will be made available to students, faculty and staff to "express the end of semester blues and bliss" in the Gelman Library Court, on H Street between 21st and 22nd Streets, N.W., from 12 to 2 p.m. (Rain date: April 27.)

This third annual "Chalk-in" is co-sponsored by GW's Counseling Center and the Graduate Training Program in Art Therapy. Both individual and group art therapy are integrated parts of the counseling services. Art therapy activities have included counseling students after traumatic experiences and helping students overcome writer's block.

For information call Sandy Geller at 676-6550.

GW OFFERS A CREATIVE ALTERNATIVE TO BURNOUT

"It's Your Turn To Play," a workshop on creative alternatives to burnout, will be held Saturday, April 30 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Marvin Center Ballroom of The George Washington University. The Marvin Center is located at 800 21st Street, N.W.

The workshop offers a chance for mental health professionals, educators and others to relax and release tensions through expressive play--using music, movement, art and drama. The day will be led by Ed Lilley, known for his innovative work with the National Committee, Arts for the Handicapped. He has developed training programs and has written literature on play for the Pennsylvania Department of Education, and was featured in the Golden Eagle award-winning documentary film, "A Touch of Hands."

The workshop is sponsored by the Potomac Art Therapy Association, the GW Graduate Training Program in Art Therapy, and the GW Counseling Center. Pre-registration is required for all participants. The fee is $25 for adults and $20 for students.

For more information, call 676-6550.

GW ESTABLISHES SAMUEL G. EBLING BOOK COLLECTION IN ART HISTORY

Chairman Lilien T. Robinson of The George Washington University Art Department has announced the establishment of the Samuel G. Ebling Book Collection, which was made possible through the generosity of a $300,000 bequest from the estate of Samuel G. Ebling of Waverly, Ohio.

Income from the endowment will be used primarily to purchase books and to expand the department's art history collection.

"The bequest comes during a period of major growth for the department," Dr. Robinson said. "Our history of art section recently established the position of distinguished visiting professor and has added new courses to its curriculum, while significantly expanding its art library collection. The program is particularly strong, and I believe we are making a major contribution to teaching and research in this field."

A native of Bellefontaine, Ohio and a member of the GW class of 1920, Mr. Ebling served more than 35 years with the consular division of the U.S. Department of State. Although his formal education at GW did not include courses in art history, Mr. Ebling's foreign service travels carried him to a number of European art centers--Paris, Florence, Madrid, Vienna,

Rome, Munich, and others--which enabled him to cultivate an appreciation for fine arts. To enhance his art background, Mr. Ebling took courses from a number of European universities; on retiring from the foreign service and returning to Ohio, he enrolled as a special student at Wittenberg University in Springfield, Ohio to obtain more knowledge of art history.

Mr. Ebling was living in Waverly, Ohio at the time of his death in October 1981.

GW OFFERS TEST REVIEW COURSES

If you have been out of school or abroad for a while, are you now thinking of returning to school? Anyone considering college or graduate studies faces the worrisome prospect of taking a national, standardized test for enrollment and may wonder how to prepare.

George Washington University's Center for Continuing Education in Washington offers test review courses for those needing to reacquaint themselves with subjects and test-taking strategies. The center will prepare prospective students for the College Level Examination Program (CLEP), Graduate Record Examination (GRE), Graduate Management Admission Test (GMAT), Foreign Service Examination (FSE), Law School Admission Test (LSAT), Medical College Aptitude Test (MCAT), and the Miller Analogies Test (MAT).

CLEP is particularly valuable to returning students since it allows them to earn college credits for expertise acquired outside college. Students can shorten the time needed to earn their degree and thus, save on tuition costs. The Foreign Service Examination course develops familiarity with the examination format and provides a comprehensive review of verbal skills, economics and current affairs.

For anyone uncertain about education or career goals, CCEW also offers a variety of counseling services. And for those seeking career-enhancement opportunities, the center offers undergraduate credit programs and graduate-level career certificate programs.

For more information, call test review coordinator Abigail Pereira at 676-8307.
